Kristi Obmascher is a Senior Outreach Specialist at the University of Wisconsin-Madison and has been an academic staff member there since January of 1990. She currently works as the Community Prevention Specialist on a Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorders (FASD) cooperative agreement in the Department of Family Medicine; and teaches undergraduate Special Topics courses on FASD and binge drinking prevention through the Department of Professional Development and Applied Studies.

For nearly 20 years Ms. Obmascher has been raising awareness, providing education, conducting outreach, and developing programming related to alcohol use and pregnancy. She has planned and provided a wide variety of awareness and educational programs for students, health and human services providers, and families affected by FASD. She attended the University of Wisconsin Madison and received a Bachelor of Science degree from Old Dominion University in Norfolk, Virginia in 1982.
